THE HOSKINE, HOSKINS OR HASKINS
FAMILY.Early Family

WILLIAM HOSKINS, or HOSKINE, as the surname used sometimes to be spelled in the public records of Plymouth Colony, was at Plymouth and a married man as early as 1641, for on the 2d day of March in that year, "Ann Hinde the wife of William Hoskins, aged 25 yeares or thereabout," testified concerning what occurred in the old country before she came to America. January 18, 1643, William Hoskins in writing agreed that his daughter Sarah Hoskins should live with Thomas Whitney and wife until Sarah should be twenty years of age, and the document further went on to say that Sarah was 6 years old the 16th of Sept. last past, and therefore must have been born Sept. 16th, 1636.

This leads us to suppose William Hoskins was married as early as 1635, and if Ann Hinde was his first wife, that she became a mother at the age of 20 years, which is probably the fact.

From the old colony records we glean the additional fact that William Hoskins's children were as follows:

Sarah, b. Sept. 16, 1636.

A son, name not given, b. Nov. 30, 1647.

Samuel, b. Aug. 8, 1654.

Tradition says that William Hoskins of Taunton (who, on the 3d of July, 1677, was married to Sarah Caswell), was a son of William of Plymouth, and if the son whose birth is recorded but name not given, then he was about thirty years of age at the date of his marriage, and almost 73 at the making of his will, which suppositions are quite reasonable.

William Hoskins, of Plymouth, received several land grants, and one, under date of June 3, 1662, located the grant at a place called Lakenham.

He was one of the Grand Jury in 1654 and 1682, and Petit Juror 23 times from 1646 to 1681.

Letters of administration were granted William Hoskins of Plymouth, on the estate of "Nicholas Hodgins" Feb. 6th, 1656, and on the estate of Peter Riffe, March, 1684.

The tongue of Ann, the wife of William Hoskins, appears to have been an unruly member, for on one occasion she was complained of and brought into court for saying a certain woman of her acquaintance was "drunk as a bitch;" which statement, Ann, on being arraigned, acknowledged was false, and under date of March 1, 1661, the court record informs us that

"Ann the wife of William Hoskins for speaking most lascivious and filthy language to Hester Ricard* fined twenty shillings."

William Hoskins and Ann his wife were also plaintiffs in court in an action against John Duford for slander, and the jury awarded to them the full amount claimed as damages.

Soon after the close of King Philip's War and under date of March 2, 1680, we find this record:

"The Court have ordered four pounds unto William Hoskins to be payed to him by the Treasurer in regard of his low condition having lost all he had in the late warr and being growne old and unable to labour."

WILLIAM HOSKINS, of Taunton, was a son of William Hoskins, of Plymouth. [Tradition.]

* The maiden name of Hester Rickard was Barnes. John Barnes, of Plymouth, in his will, dated March 6, 1678, noticed his "kinswoman Ester Rickard," who was doubtless identical with Hester Barnes, who married a Rickard. John Barnes was a drunken sot, and his death was occasioned by a bull that gored him in return for some pranks he was playing with the beast.

That he was a soldier in the Narraganset War we accept as a fact, because in his "last will and testament" he made that declaration. For the name of his wife, date of their marriage, together with the names of his children and dates of their several births (save the daughter Hannah) we are indebted to the "Proprietors' Records" of the township of Taunton, and that they had a daughter Hannah to the mention of her name in the father's will, dated March 26, 1730.

The principal interest in the Hoskins family felt by the writer of this genealogy, arises from the fact that he is a lineal descendant through Henry, the third son and fifth child of the second William. This Henry was by trade a "blacksmith," and we make no effort to conceal the fact, nor do we feel any mortification on that account, and hence the advice of the poet is lost on us when he says,

"Depend upon it, my snobbish friend,
Your family thread you can't ascend
Without good reason to apprehend
You'll find it waxed at the farther end
By some plebeian vocation."

After an extended research concerning families bearing more than twenty different surnames, and with which we are by blood allied, we have not realized the

"Worse than that, your boasted line
May end in a loop of stronger twine,
That plagued some ancient relation."

The student in our country's history has an interest in this branch of the Hoskins family, as it has been contended that Abraham Lincoln, the martyr President of the United States, was a lineal descendant, and that the same blood which coursed the veins of William Hoskins, of Plymouth, was, through successive generations, as a legitimate inheritance, transmitted to the Captain in "Black Hawk's War," Congressional statesman and President, and at last shed by the hand of a malignant assassin, filling loyal hearts with horror and the whole people with forebodings of evil and desolation and feelings of sadness and gloom.

Tradition asserts, and known facts to a considerable extent aid in justifying this claim, for Mr. Lincoln in form bore a very striking resemblance to the old race of Hoskins, and that his ancestors went from New England is generally admitted and scarcely ever denied, and that one of the women of this family was the legal wife of one ABRAHAM LINCOLN is a matter of public record, and that this man and woman went to a distant and south-westerly part of the country and there became the grand-parents of the President, is tradition, and one that comes down through those persons who would be the most likely to know of and to notice the fact. To prove positively that Mr. Lincoln was or that he was not lineally descended from the Hoskins family, is at this time probably an impossibility, as Mr. Lincoln's information concerning his genealogical descent was meagre in the extreme, nor have any of his biographers succeeded in adding much light or knowledge to that which he enjoyed on this subject.

Of late years people have come quite generally to write and pronounce this name Haskins instead of Hoskins. That the name was Hoskins and not Haskins we are pretty thoroughly convinced, and shall therefore call them what the public formerly did, and what they called themselves, as we cannot see any right that we possess to change their surnames any more than those of their christening.

We shall endeavor to adhere to the ancient form of spelling, until arriving to those who changed it: calling those Haskins who from choice called themselves so, as this, we think, is the only fair method of procedure that will mete out justice to all.

Perhaps the Hoskineses will say that all should be called Hoskins, and the Haskineses that it looks better and sounds better to accept their mode of spelling; but the writer of this work will not assume or accept the labor of settling for them what they cannot settle among and for themselves.

There was a John Hoskins who was warned out of the town of Plymouth in October, 1684, for fear he would become chargeable to that town; and a John Haskins, a soldier in Capt. Samuel Gallop's company in the expedition to Canada in 1690; and a John Hoskins, a weaver by trade, of Dighton, who made a will, May 31, 1715, and named wife Elizabeth, daughter Eliza wife of Ebenezer Pitts, daughter Sarah wife of Henry Gassett. He also had allusion to his brother Richard Hoskins.

There was a Mary Hoskins who married Edward Cobb, of Plymouth, Nov. 28, 1660; Rebecca Hoskins, of Lakenham, who married Richard Briggs, of Taunton, Aug. 15, 1662, and Elizabeth Hoskins who married Ephraim Tilson, of Plymouth, July 7, 1666; and these the writer of this genealogy lacks evidence to enable him to state how they are connected with the family whose history is here being considered.

WILLIAM HOSKINS and wife ANN HINDE had:

(2) Sarah, b. Sept. 16, 1636; mar. Dec. 4, 1660, Benjamin Eaton, of Plymouth.

(3) William, b. (perhaps Nov. 30, 1747); m. July 3, 1677, Sarah Caswell, of Taunton.

MELATIAH HATHAWAY and wife ANNA HOSKINS† (No. 28) had :

(96) Melatiah ; b. Sept. 14, 1732 ; m. Judith Peirce, of

* The writer's father (the late Ebenezer Peirce, Esq.) was christened John, and continued to bear that name until the death of his uncle, Ebenezer Peirce (No. 86), when his name was changed to Ebenezer. The writer thus came by his christian-name, one he never liked at all, but long since resolved to get along with and make the best of. If I was at all superstitious, I should think it an omen of evil, for the Ebenezers of the family have been unusually subject to casualties, mishaps and misfortunes.

† After the death of Anna, Melatiah Hathaway for a second wife married Sarah Hathaway, of Freetown. Anna, the first wife, must have died sometime before Feb.

Middleboro', now Lakeville. He was a Lieut. of the local militia of Dartmouth, and a member of Constitutional Convention, 1780. He d. Jan. 8, 1808, aged 75 years, 3 mos. and 25 days. She d. Nov. 6, 1824, aged 88 years, 7 mos. and 13 days. [Gravestones.]

(98) James, b. Oct. 28, 1737; m. Abigail Peirce, of Spencer, Mass. He was Committee of Correspondence, Inspection and Safety in 1783, Selectman of Spencer in 1785 and '87, represented that town in the General Court seven years, member of State Convention in 1788. He d. April, 1817, aged 79 years, 5 mos. She d. Oct. 21, 1822, aged 80 years, 9 mos. 19 days. [Gravestones.]

(99) Sylvanus, b. —; m. — Bushee. [Tradition.]

(100) Seth, b. —; m. Jan. 13, 1771, Welthea Howland, a daughter of Joshua Howland.

(101) Anna, b. —; m. Oct. 31, 1771, Silas Peirce, of Middleboro', now Lakeville. He d. May 1, 1816. [Gravestones.]

(102) Mercy, b. —; m. 1765, John White, of Freetown. He was Sergeant of Capt. Levi Rounsevell's Co. of 23, 1756, as at that date Rachel Haskins (a single woman who had been a servant of Melatiah Hathaway while a widower) gave birth to an illegitimate child, that she swore was begotten by her former employer, Melatiah Hathaway, and for this act of fornication Rachel was sentenced by the county court to be publicly whipped. The child took the surname of its reputed father, and became a minister of the Calvinistic Baptist denomination, next changed to "Christian," and finally Swedenborgian. Philip, for that was the child's name, died in Freetown, June 14, 1839, was interred in the ancient cemetery, a little south of Asenot Village, and his grave is marked by a marble slab bearing an inscription.

Rev. Philip Hathaway (or Hathway, as he used to write the surname) was united in marriage with Abiah Ashley, a daughter of Williams Ashley and Elizabeth his wife, and the oldest son of Rev. Philip and wife Abiah was christened Noah. This Noah, when a single man, was charged by a single woman, viz., Sarah Porter, of Freetown, with being the father of her bastard child, that she named Noah Porter Hathaway. Noah Porter Hathaway married Nancy Payne, of Freetown, and one of their daughters, a married woman, has had the shameless audacity to state publicly that one or more of her children were begotten by a man not her husband; and thus are we assured of the truth of the adage, "Blood will tell." Does, or does not, history repeat itself?

"Minute Men" that responded to the first call, now known as Lexington Alarm; and also Sergeant of Capt. Rounseville's Co. in the Continental Army. Tradition says that Mrs. White one night discovered a tory passing the house, who had been sentenced to remain at home and not to go off his farm; and taking down her husband's loaded gun, she went to the door and discharged the piece at the tory, and thus frightened him into a future compliance with the order. Lieut. Abraham Ashley was the tory's name.

SHADRACH PEIRCE and wife ABIGAIL HOSKINS (No. 29) had:

(103) Sarah, b. Feb. 1, 1738 (or five months and sixteen days after her parents were married); m. Sept. 14, 1757, George Peirce, of Middleboro'. He died July 17, 1774. She died April 20, 1778, or about three years and nine months after her husband; yet had she given birth to an illegitimate child, Oct. 16, 1776, or two years and three months after his decease, and which act tradition says that she bitterly repented of, going so far as to express her desire to be buried at the feet of her husband, as she thought herself unworthy to lie even in the grave at his side.

(104) Levi, b. Feb. 26, 1739; was a soldier in the French and Indian War; m. Feb. 11, 1761, Bathsheba Babbett, of Middleboro', Mass. Removed to Spencer, in Worcester County, and from thence to Peru, in Berkshire county. He died Jan. 1, 1826. She died Aug. 31, 1830.

(105) Abigail, b. Jan. 2, 1742; m. James Hathaway, of Spencer, a son of Melatiah Hathaway and wife Anna Hoskins, and hence her first cousin. He died April, 1817. She died Oct. 21, 1822.

(106) Lydia, b. Sept. 30, 1745; m. Jan. 27, 1763, Lieut. John Howland, of Brookfield, Mass. He was an officer in the patriot army of Revolution. His first commission in that army was that of Ensign.

Lieut. John died Jan. 13, 1810.

(107) Shadrach, b. 1750; m. Anna Bridges. He was a soldier in the patriot army in the War of Revolution. He died in 1832. Lived in Spencer, Mass. Drew a pension.

Dea. WILLIAM HOAR and wife SARAH HOSKINS (No. 30) had:

(108) Rebecca, b. Oct. 12, 1746; m. William Rounseville, of East Freetown. She d. Dec. 13, 1774. He d. Sept. —, 1797. (Gravestones.)

(109) Mary, b. Dec. 28, 1747; m. Aug. —, 1768, Lieut. Ezra Clark, of Middleboro', now Lakeville. Of the "Beach Woods" company he was commissioned in 1787 as Lieut.

(110) Judith, m. Aug. 18, 1768, Isaac Hathaway, of Freetown. He was a son of Nicholas Hathaway and wife Rebecca Merrick.

(111) Sarah, m. Isaac Hill, of Lisle, Broome county, N. Y. (Tradition.)

(112) Braddock, b. 1756; m. twice: first, July 27, 1786, Sarah Valentine, a daughter of John Valentine, of Middleboro', now Lakeville. She died, and he m. second, Charity Snow, of Rochester. He was a soldier in the patriot army of American Revolution, and, tradition informs, was captured by the enemy, and for a time held as a prisoner.

(113) Anna, m. Noah Clark, Esq., of Middleboro', now Lakeville. She d. Jan. 18, 1839. He d. Oct. 25, 1830.

(114) William, b. 1762; m. Catharine Brown. He d. Oct. 27, 1827. She d. March, 1854. (See gravestones in Caswell burial ground, East Taunton.)

(116) Luther, m. Betsey Hoar. Of 7th Co. of the militia of Middleboro', now Lakeville (Beach Wood Co. so called), he was commissioned, June 12, 1789, as Ensign; James Peirce being Captain, and Leonard Hinds Lieut., and in the regiment of which Israel Fearing, of Wareham, was Colonel.

(117) Lorana, d. at the age of 4 years.

Deacon William Hoar, the parent, used to tend a grist mill in that part of Middleboro', now Lakeville, called Beach Woods. He was deacon of the Calvinistic Baptist church, whose place of worship was near; and in the mill race, just below the wheel of the deacon's mill, the ordinance of baptism by immersion used sometimes to be administered. One of the oldest inhabitants, now residing in that section of the country, once told the writer that he in boyhood witnessed these exercises, and had known a grist ground on Sundays that the amount of water might be increased below the wheel; having, as evidently they did, a keen eye to availing themselves of all the uses to which the water could be applied. Whether the deacon gave his chief attention to the ordinance of baptism as a means of grace, or to the grinding of the grist, our informant did not state. Why they did not make use of the water in the pond above the wheel, I never could determine, unless, like the pool of Siloam, that to be a means of healing had to be troubled, so, perhaps, in the minds of these Baptists, this ordinance to be effectual must be performed in a running stream, and no still or stagnant water would answer the purpose.

STEPHEN HOSKINS (No. 31) and wife MARY — had:

(118) Stephen.

(119) John.

(120) Jacob.

(121) Abigail, m. Seth Tisdale.

Stephen, the parent, made a will, June 9, 1787, in which he named wife Mary, and sons Stephen, John and Jacob, and daughter Abigail, the wife of Seth Tisdale. Record of the will of Stephen Hoskins may be found in the probate office at Taunton, Mass.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN and wife LYDIA HASKINS (No. 48).

Concerning the connection existing between the Haskins family and Abraham Lincoln, late President of the United States, that tradition has set afloat and which has been carried as on the wings of the wind to the remote corners of earth and wherever a Haskins exists, I will now state that at the first I was inclined to put some confidence in the statement, from the fact that having seen and conversed with President Lincoln, I discovered in his bodily form much of the original or at least olden type as described to me by those best acquainted with the Haskins family in Massachusetts a century ago. The writer's great-grandmother on the paternal side was a Hoskins, or what is now generally called Haskins, and my grandfather in form and feature, I have been told, took strongly from the maternal side. He, like Mr. Lincoln, was tall and bony, long limbed, gaunt, and withal awkward and good-natured, enjoying fun even at the sacrifice of his proper dignity, and a good joke though perpetrated to his own expense.

Then, as I progressed in my researches (of the county records in the offices of the Registry of Probate and of Deeds), the statements of the tradition were so uniformly and strongly verified that for a time my confidence was increased and my belief strengthened.

It is an old adage, and one that when put in practice often demolishes tradition, viz., "figures won't lie;" and when the test of figures had been duly applied, I confess that much of my former confidence forsook me, and I am forced to the conclusion either that the biographers of President Lincoln are in an error in the date they have fixed upon for his grandfather's settlement in Pennsylvania, or else Abraham Lincoln of Taunton and subsequently of Freetown, and Lydia his wife, were not the ancestors of the martyr President of these United States.

That an Abraham Lincoln of Taunton did become the husband of Lydia, a daughter of Joshua Hoskins of that town, is established beyond any reasonable doubt, from the fact that said Joshua Hoskins, in his last will and testament, dated Jan 1, 1772, made a provision for his daughter Lydia, who he therein described as the wife of Abraham Lincoln; and under date of March 10, 1775, Abraham Lincoln, of Taunton, exchanged a piece of land with George Godfrey, Esq. (afterward Brigadier General Godfrey), the deed of exchange being on record in the Registry of Deeds at Taunton. Under date of Feb. 19, 1777, this Abraham Lincoln purchased of Oliver Danforth a piece of cedar swamp that seems to have been on the dividing line between the towns of Taunton and Norton, and lying partly in each.

March 14, 1794, the same Abraham Lincoln bought of Thomas Lee 66 acres of land lying in what was then Freetown, now Fall River, and there, probably, he went to reside, as on the 29th of April, 1797, in a mortgage deed of these premises, made to Thomas Lee, he is called Abraham Lincoln, of Freetown; and Lydia, his wife, also signed the deed. This farm in Freetown subsequently became the property of the Lees, but at what date the record fails to show, probably, however, a little before 1800, or some 78 years since, when tradition says that Abraham Lincoln went to a more southerly part of the United States and was identical with the earliest ancestor of President Lincoln named by his biographers.

Had this selling out in Massachusetts occurred twenty or thirty years earlier than it did, then might we feel a good degree of confidence in the truth of the theory upon which the tradition is based, for it would have at least seemed more plausible if no more true. The life of President Lincoln, written by Henry J. Raymond, says, "The ancestors of Abraham Lincoln were of English descent; and although they are believed to have originally emigrated to this country with the followers of William Penn, it is difficult to trace them farther back than to their place of residence in Berks

County, Pennsylvania, whence a part of the family removed in 1750 to that section of Virginia now known as Rockingham County." "Thirty years later, Abraham Lincoln, the grandfather of our late President, finding civilization crowding him too closely, and possibly enticed by the stories which came back to the frontier settlements from that famous pioneer, Daniel Boone, but undeterred by the dangers which he knew he must inevitably encounter, determined to make another bold push westward, and settled on Floyd's Creek, in Kentucky, in what is now known as Bullitt County.

"Hardly had he secured a home for his little family, when he was fatally shot by an Indian who came upon him stealthily while he was at work some distance from his log cabin."

That the family or a part of it, in 1750, removed from Berks Co., Pennsylvania, to Rockingham Co., Virginia, is doubtless purely traditional, and may be regarded as true or it may not, as traditions, which are shaky at the best, are generally very unreliable in point of dates.

"Thirty years later," viz. 1780, Abraham Lincoln is said to have emigrated to Bullitt Co., Kentucky, and that date our reason dictates us to believe may have been correct, or nearly so. Now had Abraham Lincoln, of Taunton, and subsequently of Freetown, sold out and gone to a remote part of the country in 1780 or thereabouts, instead of 1798, I for one should still be strong in the belief that he was identical with the person of that name who fell from the fatal shot of the stealthy savage; but the term of eighteen years is much too long a time, and the difference is almost or quite irreconcilable. I do not wish to be understood as saying that I discard the tradition, for the biographer of President Lincoln may be in an error, as probably he never gave a tenth part of the time and labor to his investigations upon the result of which his statement is made, as the writer of this book has devoted to tracing the evidence pro and con concerning Abraham Lincoln and wife Lydia Haskins, and the tradition that they were the grandparents of the sixteenth President of the United States.

ABIEL HASKINS (No. 54) and wife LYDIA BRIGGS had :

(122) Lydia, m. Oct. 10, 1782, Ebenezer Read, of Taunton. (Berkley Records.)

This aged couple, both being in their eighty-fourth year, still live on the farm and in the house in which he was born; and it was in the room in which his eyes first saw the light that he communicated to the writer of this work many facts pertaining to the history of the Haskins family.

(134) Abiel, m. Lydia Smith, of Freetown. (Tradition.)

(135) Daniel, m. no one; died when 21 years of age. (Tradition.)

JOSHUA HOSKINS (No. 55) and wife HANNAH MYRICK had:

(136) Enoch, b. in Taunton, Nov. 6, 1778; m. Phebe Weeks. He d. July 21, 1863. She d. Sept. 21, 1853. Commissioned, April 14, 1817, Captain of 2d company of the local militia in Middleboro'; honorably discharged at the disbandment of that company, Jan. 20, 1818.* That company was formed in or about 1720, and existed about 98 years.

* Captains of the 2d company of local militia in the town of Middleboro', and also the dates of their commissions, so far as the knowledge of the same has come to the writer of this book:

Ichabod Southworth, from in or about 1720; Nathaniel Southworth; Ebenezer Morton; Nathaniel Smith, from July 23, 1754, to 1762; Gideon Southworth, from Oct. 27, 1762, to 1772; Robert Sprout, from June 12, 1772, to 1774; Nathaniel Smith, from Oct. 10, 1771, and he was probably in commission as Captain of this company on the occasion of the "Lexington Alarm," April 19, 1775, but neither he, nor Nehemiah Allen, his Lieutenant, nor Samuel Barrows, his Ensign, appeared with the company in response to the country's "first call" of distress, and doubtless were all dismissed from their offices by an act of the Massachusetts legislature that took effect Sept. 19, 1775. At the "Lexington Alarm," by returns on the official files in the State House, Boston, it still appears that this 2d company responded under Abiel Peirce, a veteran Captain of the French and Indian War, whose Lieutenants were Joseph Macomber and Benjamin Darling. For a complete roll of those who then responded, see page 62 of book entitled "Peirce Family of Old Colony." Lieut. Nehemiah Allen was commissioned Captain, May 9, 1776; John Barrows, April 8, 1778; Abner Bourne, June 2, 1780; Ezra Harlow, July 1, 1781; George Vaughan, April 12, 1790; Peter Hoar, from June 6, 1793, until promoted to Major, Jan. 4, 1797; Jabez Thomas, Jan. 25, 1797; John Morton, May 7, 1799; Sylvanus Tillson, May 4, 1802; Nathaniel Cole, May 7, 1805; Abner Barrows, Jr., July 27, 1807; Ephraim Ward, from to 1814, when promoted to Major; Peter Hoar Peirce, from Feb. 18, 1814, to 1816, when promoted to Major. He was a nephew of Capt. Abiel Peirce who led the company at the first battle of the Revolution, and to Peter H. Peirce was accorded the honor to command it as a part of the "coast guard" in the last war with England. For roll of this company in that service, see pages 368 and 369 of the book entitled "Peirce Family of Old Colony." Orrin Tinkham, from Sept. 10, 1816; Enoch Hoskins, from April 14, 1817, to disbandment, Jan. 20, 1818. The geographical limits of this company took in the four corners village, and extended about two miles into what is now Lakeville. It was disbanded to allow the raising of a volunteer company called the "Middleboro' Grenadiers," of which Isaac Stevens was the first Captain, Lorenzo Wood, Lieutenant, and Sylvanus Barrows, Ensign. It was in that GRENADIER COMPANY that the writer of this book was first enrolled as a soldier in the active militia of this commonwealth, my volunteer enlistment into which was on the 10th day of December, 1841, and where as a private soldier I remained until commissioned Quarter-master of the Fourth Regiment of Artillery, Aug. 7, 1844.

(137) Lucinda, b. in Middleboro', now Lakeville, Oct. 16, 1780; m. March 20, 1803, Thomas Southworth. She d. March 5, 1832. He died June 19, 1867. He was b. May 8, 1776, and was a son of Gideon Southworth.

HENRY HOSKINS (No. 58) and wife ABIGAIL TOWNSEND had:

(153) Nathaniel, m. Experience Holloway, of Middleboro', now Lakeville.

(154) Gilbert, m. Lydia Read, of Middleboro', now Lakeville. Both are dead.

(155) Henry, b. July 26, 1793; m. May 29, 1817, Abigail Richmond, of Middleboro'. He d. Feb. 14, 1853, aged 59 years, 6 months and 19 days. She d. June 14, 1853. (See gravestones.)

(156) Edward, b. Jan. 28, 1796; m. March 23, 1823, Fanny Pearce, of Taunton. They were cousins.

(157) Abigail, m. Capt. Apollos Read, of Middleboro', now Lakeville. Of the 7th company* in Middleboro', "Beach Woods" company so called, he was commissioned, May 7, 1816, as Lieutenant, Ethan Peirce being Captain, and Elias Parris, Ensign; promoted to Captain, 182-, with John Strobridge, Lieutenant, and Samuel Hoar, Ensign. This company belonged to the 4th regiment in 2d brigade, 5th division, Massachusetts Militia. The regiment being commanded by Col. Ephraim Ward, of Middleboro', now Lakeville; the brigade by Brigadier General Abiel Washburn, of Middleboro', and the division by Major General Nathaniel Goodwin, of Plymouth.

Capt. Amos Washburn was a son of Edward Washburn and wife Elizabeth Snell, grandson of James Washburn and wife Mary Bowden, great-grandson of John Washburn and wife Experience Mitchell.

On the occasion of the great alarm in 1778, caused by the landing of the British soldiers in Dartmouth, now New Bedford, and their attempt to burn the village of Fairhaven (Sept. 17, 1778), Capt. Amos Washburn and the company

* This 7th company was formed during the War of the American Revolution, and Henry Peirce commissioned Captain. His successors in that office, and the date, of their commissions, were as follows: James Peirce, July 17, 1787; Abanash Blinds, Aug. 15, 1796; Elkanah Peirce, May 4, 1802; Dr. Elisha Briggs, Sept. 29, 1806; Sylvanus Parris, March 20, 1811; Ethan Peirce, June 6, 1815; Apollos Read, 182-; John Strobridge, May 19, 1827; Samuel Hoar, from June 6, 1829, to May 30, 1831; Silas P. Ashley, Aug. 15, 1831. After May 30, 1830, this company also embraced what had been the 4th company in Middleboro', sometimes called the "Pond Company." By the election of Silas P. Ashley, Aug. 15, 1831, Lieut. John W. Canedy was superseded, and vacated his position Sept. 10, 1831, and that place was filled Oct. 7, 1831, by the election of Abraham Peirce. This company was disbanded by legislative enactment, April 24, 1840. Existed about sixty years. Had no Captain after Silas P. Ashley, although not disbanded until some two or three years after he resigned. Lieut. Abraham Peirce was therefore its last commander.

of local militia under his command responded to the call and promptly repaired to the scene of action. He was then captain of the fourth company* of local militia in Middleboro', the geographical limits of which company are now nearly all in Lakeville.

The following is a true list of the officers and soldiers of that company who responded to that call, copied by the writer of this book from the official returns on file in the office of the Secretary of State, Boston.

Amos Washburn, Captain. Elisha Haskell, Lieutenant. Andrew McCully, Second Lieutenant. Sergeants, Samuel Nelson, Job Townsend, Robert Strobridge and Abraham Shaw. Corporals, James Pickens and Josiah Jones. Private Soldiers, John Townsend, Job Howland, John Peirce, John Blye, Andrew Perkins, Henry Strobridge, Ebenezer Briggs, Thomas Nelson, Roger Haskell, Zebulon Haskell, David Lewis, Silas Peirce, Jonathan Phinney, Benjamin Smith, Zephaniah Briggs, Darling Shaw, Andrew Cole, Noah Clark, Nathan Peirce, John Blye, Jr., Wm. JONATHAN HARVEY and wife ABIGAIL HASKINS (No. 63) had a family of children, whose names I collected, but the manuscript was lost in being transmitted to the printer, and I have not the ready means to replace it, and so must omit the account.

JAMES HARVEY and wife BETHANA HASKINS (No. 64) had:

(180) Luther, never married; died or lost at sea.

(181) Polly, m. Dec. 8, 1810, John Haskins.

(182) Chloe, m. Robert Robinson, of Hingham. He committed suicide. Resided for a time in Freetown. He served twelve days in the coast guard at New Bedford in 1814.

(183) Bethana, m. Peter Staples.

(184) Betsey, m. — King.

(185) James, m. three times: first, Eunice Briggs. She died, and he married second, —.

(186) Jonathan, m. twice: first, Mary —. She d. June 25, 1835. (See grave-stones.)

James Harvey, the parent, left his wife and went to a distant part of the country.

Charity Haskins (No. 65), daughter of Abiel Haskins (No. 22), was born in or about 1754, and married Seth Anthony, instead of Paul Anthony, as was stated on page 148 of this book. They removed to Kortwright in the State of New York, where he appears to have become poor; he and his wife separated, remaining apart till his last sickness, that terminated in death Sept. 20, 1827. It cost the writer of this genealogy considerable time, travel and effort to obtain this meagre account of Seth Anthony and wife Charity Haskins, and sometimes he has felt that the pursuit of such knowledge was attended with so much difficulty as to excuse further labor in its attainment; but calling to mind the old Latin proverb my school-teacher gave me as a motto when quite a young boy, I repeated, "Labor omnia vincit," and struggled on.

Tradition had already misled me, and trusting to which I had stated, on page 148, that Charity Haskins (No. 65) married Paul Anthony. Now Paul was in his life-time so notorious as not to have been forgotten. Not remembered for anything good or great that he had done, but for the silly act of trying to fly by the aid of a pair of wings that he constructed of thoroughly seasoned cedar, and to obtain the material for which, sought the oldest fence-rails from Cotley to Algerine Street, Pole Plain to Beech Woods, Skunk Hill and Squawbetty, and of these, carefully culled, he collected, in the faith of mounting "up on wings as eagles," yea, the "American Eagle" of that old-fashioned stereotyped Fourth of July toast that always soared "high in the air," or, perhaps, like his illustrious namesake, to the third heavens, where things are spoken that for the inhabitants of this earth it is not lawful to utter. If these were his hopes, how great must have been his disappointment, for he came quickly and ingloriously down, falling unceremoniously and heavily in a barn-yard among beasts that neighed, brayed and bawled, swine that squealed, and fowls that squawled, their surprise, that with the groans of the bruised aeronaut, made the jargon and discord of a pandemonium, or as if all bedlam were let loose. All this I learned that did not pertain to my subject in the unsuccessful effort to obtain some facts that did, and when well nigh discouraged, it occurred to my mind to seek the assistance of Mrs. Lydia Haskins, of Myrickville, in the hope that some of the oft repeated stories of her husband's father, still lingering in her memory, might meet my wants, and aid in the attainment of a knowledge, that, like a coy maid, continually eluded my grasp. Mrs. Haskins quickly corrected the mistake by assuring me that it was Seth Anthony, instead of Paul, who married Charity, a sister of her husband's father, and to make her assurance doubly sure, produced a package of old letters from the parties themselves, bearing dates ranging from 55 to 46 years ago. These letters were addressed to Elijah Haskins (No. 56), and by his son's wife, Mrs. Lydia Haskins, had been preserved, thus to bring light out of what seemed impenetrable darkness. The perusal of these letters convinced me that Seth Anthony and wife had quite a number of children that lived to marry and be comfortably settled in life, but did not give their names with that clearness that would enable me to arrange them in the order of their births, and hence we forbear to attempt the furnishing of further particulars concerning them.

Capt. JACOB HASKINS (No. 87) and wife MERCY PITTS had:

These rolls of companies, commanded by Capt. Jacob Haskins, were copied by the writer of this family history from the originals on file in the office of the Secretary of State, Boston.

* She was notoriously ugly in her disposition, and quick to take offence.

† This John Briggs, of Berkley, received the nickname and was generally known as "Bear," or "Bear Briggs." He was a son of Amos Briggs and wife Sarah Pain. John (called the Bear) was father to the state prison convict and counterfeiter, Malbone Briggs, who had seven sons convicted of crimes that carried them to the State Prison, and the eighth son committed a highway robbery and escaped punishment by running away.

‡ She was the terrible creature formerly known as "Moll Buck," or "Mary Ben." She is said to have confessed she had committed every sin for which she knew a name, except murder. She was the daughter of Amos Briggs and wife Sarah Pain.

him from others of his name residing in the same town at one and the same time. Lasciviousness has been a strongly marked, if, indeed, not the distinguishing trait of the Chase family for two centuries.

(205) Hope, b. April 7, 1787.

(206) Elizabeth, b. Feb. 19, 1790.

The names of these children, and dates of their births, were taken from the town records of Berkley.

SOLOMON PAINE and wife MARY HOSKINS (No. 94) had:

(207) Hope,* b. June 25, 1774; m. Oct. 1, 1793, George Briggs, of Berkley.

(208) Abraham, b. Feb. 19, 1779; m. 1800, Abigail

* A circumstance, quite unimportant in itself, but occurring in my early childhood as it did, made an indelible impression upon my mind, and served ever after to keep the recollection of that woman vividly in my memory. I could have but recently graduated from my bib and diaper, and still remained in petticoats, when, riding out one day with my father, we stopped at her home, where the family had just finished their dinner, that had in part consisted of green peas and stringed beans, nicely cooked and set upon the table in an old-fashioned brown earthen milk-pan, such as we used to call "Shove's ware," and though the family had eaten their fill, quite a quantity remained, and this old woman, taking me upon her knee, moved up to the table and said: "Would this little boy like some of this dinner?" to which question I readily responded in the affirmative, but added: "I don't love beans, but I do love peas;" when she quickly said, "Well, leave the beans, and help yourself to the peas; don't be bashful, my little man, take right hold and eat as many as you like," and at the same time drawing

(209) Betsey, b. Nov. 9, 1780; m. 1799, Ephraim Tisdale, of Taunton. She d. June 13, 1843.

(210) Solomon, b. July 2, 1788; m. 1813, Elizabeth Phillips, of Freetown. He was drowned, and she m. Rufus Blossom, of Fall River. He died, and she m. Samuel Robbins, of Lakeville. Rufus Blossom was one of the four male members of the first christian church in Freetown at the date of its formation, May 14, 1807, and a truly pious man.

(211) Henry, b. Oct. 15, 1790; m. 1826, Mary Cartwright, of Fall River. They reside in Freetown.

Solomon Paine, the parent, was a son of Solomon Paine, of Freetown, and wife Lydia Soule, of Tiverton, R. I., grandson of John Pain, of Freetown, and wife Rebecca Davis, and great-grandson of Ralph Pain and wife Dorothy. Solomon Paine and Mary Hoskins were married in 1768. He enlisted as a soldier in the French and Indian War, and upon the rolls of which army, in the archives of the office of the Secretary of State in Boston, his name still stands as a "deserter." One of his grandsons was a deserter from the Union Army in the late war of Rebellion, and is so recorded. And thus "history repeats itself," and "blood will tell."

the pan of peas and beans within my easy reach. I was too anxious for the peas to wait further ceremony, and as I reached my hand into the dish, I received a sharp reprimand from my father, when my motherly old friend as quickly interposed with, "Yes, yes, let him put his hand right into the victuals, and pick out the peas; yes, indeed, yes, put in both hands, sonny, if you like;" and there I accordingly sat in that old lady's arms, reaching into the milk-pan and selecting and picking out the peas with my fingers, and enjoying the meal so heartily, that, though nearly half a century has since passed, the pleasures of that feast are still fresh in my recollection, and probably will be as long as I live or the faculty of memory remains.

Mrs. Lydia, the mother, was from Little Compton, and to no one of the Haskins family, or connected with it by marriage, does the writer owe more for information concerning the same, as without her aid I had sought in vain, and perhaps must have remained ignorant of facts without which it would have been impossible to trace in an unbroken chain to the emigrant ancestor. Her recollections of the family traditions, as communicated by her husband's father and uncle Joshua Haskins, were in this connection very valuable ; and added to which should also be noticed the singular care and commendable forethought that led her to preserve the family papers, even to letters of friendly correspondence, for quite a long term of years, that put the writer in possession of facts sought for eagerly but in vain elsewhere, and which but for her would have been buried in oblivion and forever lost to sight and to mind. In these days of whimsical women and foolish females, the family is fortunate that receives the accession by marriage of such a woman as Mrs. Lydia Haskins.
